EDUCATION

School of Hard Knocks

As a child, I excelled at drawing, painting, pastels, & charcoal. I started to lean towards music after high school. I taught myself to play guitar, piano, drums, and write songs.

The first trade I learned was carpentry. I quit framing houses before my back gave out & tried to make it as a musician. Very difficult! But, I got an amazing education in audio engineering, touring, & grassroots marketing. I've been paid 10's of thousands of dollars for performance through the years. But, never more than 20k in a single year. So, I have always had to keep a full time job.

I was lucky to spend 10 years managing a music program that I created for the Boys & Girls Club of Central AR. There, I fought the effects of systematic issues, working to teach life skills through music.

I am now 7 years into a software development career currently working for Big Human out of NYC.
